Featured Research

Qualitative follow-up of the British Gambling Prevalence Survey 2007

Kerr, J., Kinsella, R., Turley, C., Legard, R., McNaughton Nicholls, C., & Barnard, M. (2009).

This report presents results from NatCen's qualitative follow up to the British Gambling Prevalence Survey 2007 (BGPS 2007). This is an exploratory study, the two broad aims of which were to provide further insight into BGPS 2007 participant's gambling behaviour, exploring how and when the participants gamble, why they gamble, and what they enjoy about it. Where relevant, the study explores the downsides of gambling, and where problem gambling behaviour was currently (or had been) an issue for participants, to investigate the causes and associated factors of this.
